Jason D. Addie

Tbilisi, Republic of Georgia | +995 595 659 655 | jason.addie@gmail.com

12 August 2016

Dear Pixelcabin Hiring Manager:

I am submitting my application for the Junior Full Stack Developer position at Pixelcabin that I found posted on GoRemote. I am an American and have been living in Tbilisi, Georgia for the last 4.5 years. One of the reasons I am applying for your position is due to the insecurity in the currency and job market in Georgia. I am looking for an organization that is well established, has a great track record, takes care of their employees, has devoted clients, and builds great products. As a Shopify Plus Expert member, it is clear that Pixelcabin satisfies these criteria. In return for Pixelcabin's investment in me, I will be able to offer Pixelcabin and their client's the experiences and knowledge that I have gained during the last 4.5 years fulfilling the roles of a full stack Ruby on Rails developer, a project manager, and an operations director.

I have developed, either on my own or as part of a team, over 30 Ruby on Rails applications at my current organization. Some of the projects were quick low-paying projects, while others were over a year long and part of a grant worth more than $500,000. Many of the projects overlapped and required me to be able to manage my tasks wisely so I could work on multiple applications at once. My duties included developing the database and back-end; organizing the views; creating the user interface; setting up and maintaining the servers; and responding to bug reports. My knowledge and experience will allow me to be quickly become an effective developer for Pixelcabin.

I have worked with over 20 local and international organizations as a project manager and operations director at my current organization. I would meet potential clients and help them develop their idea into a working concept that not only satisfied their needs, but exceeded it. I would work with our researchers, designers, and developers to flush out and develop the concept, all the while staying on time and on budget. Even though the Junior Full Stack Developer position at Pixelcabin is mostly a programming position, I wanted to demonstrate that even though I would be working remotely from another country, Pixelcabin will never have to worry about me staying on task, communicating clearly with team members and clients, and being a productive member of the team.

Please peruse my GitHub and LinkedIn profiles to learn more about me. I would be thrilled to have the opportunity to meet with you and discuss in more detail my experiences and how I could help Pixelcabin.

Thank you for your time and I look forward to meeting you.

Sincerely,
Jason Addie